

SAY!

(By CHARLES J. ARNOLD)

George Longan, now managing editor of the Kansas City Star and who started in the newspaper game back in 1899. Mr. Longan was a reporter on the old Kansas City Times, while I was on the Star. Later he went to the Star. I went to the Star as assistant to Longan. George is strict for correct newspaper style. And here is illustration that I shall never forget. I handed George a story, which had been edited, which told of a man who had lost his "eye sight" in an accident. He glanced at it, threw it back and inquired: "How about his hearing, was it impaired?" I said that there was no "eye sight" in any newspaper vocabulary. Any time he posted in a conspicuous place in the office a story written by a reporter, with this comment: "The record paragraph—79 words about a punctuation."

"Why a watch anyway," said a GreenCastle man of whom a friend inquired the time. "I get up as early as I can and stay up as late as I can, why worry with a watch."

The fraternity and sorority house for Old Gold Day were unique, but it was for the old Gold Day, now occupying the old Hint property on west Poplar street, during the erection of their new home, to pull the best of the lot. The old gold streamers from the front to a large sign in the front on which was printed in large letters: "We do not choose to Decorate in 1927," was the hit of the lot.

"Old Gold Day," the DePauw morning day, was a big success. Perfect weather, a large crowd, a victory over Franklin. The day was all over more than expected. For many had expected a victory for the Franklin team. However, the DePauw team over a drive in the third quarter that gave them a touchdown from the game. We want to credit Coach Hughes for rejuvenating the team during the past week. It was like a different aggregation, Monday, than the one of a week before.

William Blanchard, head of athletic committee of DePauw University, gets very athletically enthusiastic at a football game.

Indiana did not fare so well at football.

New lighting system on the town streets would not go. The present conglomeration of poles, etc., not only are unsightly but fail utterly to give sufficient light. Let's get busy, Mr. Mayor and Councilmen and get something done.

Several of the local boys are going to Louisiana this week on a hunting trip. Notice has been sent ahead for farmers to pen up their cattle. One year one member of the local club killed a black cow, believing it was a bear.

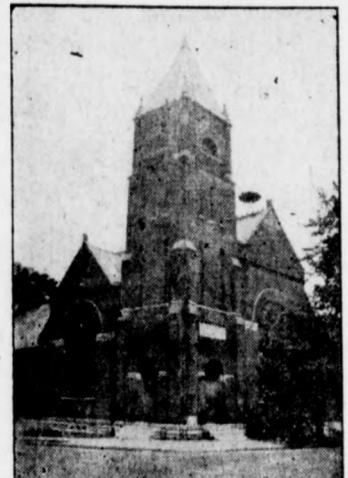

There was not another University of the United States that received the honor that DePauw University Saturday when it celebrated "Old Gold Day." One of the leading tobacco manufacturing companies in the U. S. has just put on the market a new cigarette, "Old Gold Cigarettes." The new brand, evidently named in honor of Old Gold Day appeared in GreenCastle for the first time Saturday. Sample boxes being distributed to the crowd as it entered the football field.

Mayor Charles Jewett, of Indianapolis, a former DePauw University athlete was here Saturday to endorse the school. He admits he has no objection for the office recently vacated by Mayor Duvall, but predicts there will be a shortage of candidates. Mr. Jewett sees it, none of the present claimants will be seated, but a new man will be elected by the council, who will be legally elected Mayor.

The Prince of Wales ever visits GreenCastle we are all set. We now have a riding academy.

Let's hope we do as well with Washington.

Anniversary week services began Sunday in the GreenCastle First Christian Church. The services will be marked by sermons by some of the most notable preachers in the United States.

ISAAC STRAIN DIES SUDDENLY SATURDAY NITE

PROMINENT FARMER AND WELL KNOWN RESIDENT OF GREENCASTLE TOWNSHIP STRICKEN WITH APPENDICITIS—FUNERAL HELD MONDAY MORNING

Isaac Harvey Strain, age 74 years, prominent farmer and fruit grower of GreenCastle township, died suddenly at the Putnam County Hospital Saturday evening at 11:30 o'clock of acute obstruction of the bowels following an operation for appendicitis earlier in the evening. He had been ill but two days.

Mr. Strain was taken to the Hospital Saturday forenoon and underwent an operation for appendicitis Saturday evening about 6 o'clock. He apparently stood the operation nicely but suffered a relapse later when acute obstruction of the bowels developed.

Taken ill Thursday after making some apple and cider deliveries to GreenCastle customers, Mr. Strain went home and immediately went to bed. Dr. W. W. Tucker, who was called, pronounced his illness appendicitis Saturday and he was taken to the County Hospital for an operation. Because of his advanced age the operation was perilous.

The death of Mr. Strain Saturday marked the second tragedy in the family within a little over a year. Last September, a son, Edwin Strain, was fatally injured in a team runaway.

Mr. Strain was born in Indiana the son of Daniel E. Strain and Mary Jane Hert. For many years he had been engaged in farming and horticultural work near this city and was one of the best known citizens of the Community. He was a member of the Baptist Church.

Besides the widow he leaves six sons and two daughters. They are: Evan, James, Fred, Daniel, William, Victor, Miss Mary and Mrs. June Tudor. The children were all expected home for the services. Several of them are teaching at widely scattered points.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the GreenCastle First Baptist Church conducted by the Rev. I. H. Ferris. A musical quartet from the church provided the music. Interment was in the family lot in Forest Hill cemetery.

BIG AUDIENCE AT ANNIVERSARY SERVICE SUNDAY

DR. B. A. ABBOTT, EDITOR OF THE CHRISTIAN EVANGELIST, DELIVERS IMPRESSIVE SERMON

CHURCH AUDITORIUM IS FILLED

Dr. H. O. Pritchard General Secretary of The Board of Education of Christian Churches Speaker Tonight

A large audience was present yesterday morning at the First service in the week of Seventy-fifth Anniversary services held in the First Christian Church. Dr. B. A. Abbott, editor of the Christian Evangelist of St. Louis, Mo., delivered an impressive sermon on the subject of making the most of life. He said that to make the most of life one must make the most of his or her personality; make the most of his or her task; and make the most of his or her religion.

In the afternoon Dr. Abbott spoke on the deeper meaning of the Lord's Supper at a union communion service of the GreenCastle churches. This meeting was the first of its kind that has been held in GreenCastle. Rev. B. H. Bruner, pastor of the local Christian Church said he hoped it could be made an annual affair. He said he felt the Churches could never come to that larger unity for which Jesus prayed until they were at least willing to come around the Lord's Table together.

The Church auditorium was filled for the special musical program in the evening given by the choir under the direction of Mrs. B. H. Bruner. It was the first musical evening the choir has given this year.

At the Sunday morning service a series of Seventy-fifth Anniversary bonds were placed on sale. The Junior Bonds sell for seventy-five cents. The regular bonds sell for $7.50 each. The proceeds from the sale of these bonds will go into the building fund to reduce the present indebtedness against the church. The bonds are printed on regular bond paper and are beautiful souvenirs of the anniversary.

The speaker for the service tonight at 7:30 will be Dr. H. O. Pritchard, General Secretary of the Board of Education of the Christian Churches. Dr. Pritchard is a splendid speaker and very popular as a religious leader in America. He is especially popular as a speaker at young people's meetings. The public is invited to all of the services this week.

INSANE FATHER SHOTS WIFE; ATTACKS SONS

FREDERICK SANBORNE OF SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., COMMITS SUICIDE AFTER KILLING SPOUSE AND MORTALLY WOUNDING BOY

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 31.—(INS)—Apparently suddenly insane, Frederick Sanborne, 49, today shot and killed his wife, Maude, mortally wounded his son, Jack, 10, attacked his oldest son, Frederick, Jr., and then killed himself.

Another son, Albert, escaped his father by running from the Sanborne home, where the mad attack was staged.

Sanborne first shot the boy Jack, the bullet entering the left temple, and the boy later was reported dying at the Orange Memorial Hospital.

He then turned the gun on his wife, who has been ill. He struck her with a hammer and then attacked Frederick with the hammer. An attempt to shoot Frederick failed when the revolver missed fire. He then killed himself.

"LEAPING LENA" LEAPS

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 31.—(INS)—"Leaping Lena" made its last leap, sixty feet down an almost vertical embankment, last Friday night, accompanied all the way by its driver, James Cole, 18, negro, who miraculously escaped injury. The car plunged to the edge of the White river, at East Michigan street, turning over, it was believed, at least four times, when the wheels locked in a car track.

TERRE HAUTE NORMAL GRID CAPTAIN HURT

CAPTAIN PAUL BECK INJURED INTERNALLY WHEN AUTOMOBILE IN WHICH HE AND FIVE COMPANIONS WERE RIDING HITS BRIDGE ABUTMENT AT HAMRICK STATION SATURDAY EVENING

Paul Beck, captain and left tackle of the Terre Haute State Normal football team was hurt internally late Saturday evening, when the automobile in which he and five companions were riding, crashed into an overhead Pennsylvania railroad bridge abutment at Hamrick Station five miles south of GreenCastle on the Manhattan road, after hitting a wrecked automobile at the side of the highway.

Beck, accompanied by Miss Hazel McVey, of Bedford, and two other girls and two members of the State Normal football team, were enroute home from Crawfordsville, where the State Normal team had played the Wabash college team Saturday afternoon, when the accident occurred. Following a big bus carrying other members of the team, the driver of the touring car carrying Beck and his companions did not see the wrecked car until too late to avoid a collision. The driver lost control of the machine after the crash with the wrecked automobile and the machine hit the bridge abutment.

All the occupants were thrown out in the crash. Passing motorists brought them to the office of Dr. W. M. McGaughey where they received attention. Two of the girls were hurt, one receiving cuts and bruises about the leg and side and another cuts about the head. Beck was apparently hurt internally and was in a serious condition. He was removed to the County Hospital where he remained until Sunday noon. At that time Coach Wally Marks and a dean of men at State Normal came to GreenCastle and removed Beck to Terre Haute.

The extent of Beck's injuries were not thoroughly determined by Dr. McGaughey. The local physician said he was badly hurt internally and that he vomited continually.

The car in which the group were riding was owned by William Uffelman of Sullivan, and was driven by his daughter. Miss Uffelman was injured about the head, but not seriously. The car was badly damaged. It was brought to the Franklin Street Garage for repairs.

FINAL PERFORMANCE OF "GOLDEN GIRL" IS GIVEN

One of the best student performances ever given at DePauw University was the presentation of "The Golden Girl" Saturday night, in which thirty members of the public speaking and drama department took part.

One of the outstanding successes of the play was Miss Rosalie McCullough, a GreenCastle girl, who played the part of Riley's "Aunt Mary." Harry Gough, also of GreenCastle, and Helen Judd as the charming golden girl at fourteen, delighted the audience with the little love scene "on the banks of the Brandywine."

Clever songs based on Riley's poetry, written by the author of the play, Walter Bullock, played by the University sextet and sung by a male trio, were highly applauded. About fifteen hundred persons saw the play.

ESCAPES DEATH IN ACCIDENT AT CEMENT PLANT

JESSE RICHARDSON, PRINCIPAL IN FIRST SERIOUS ACCIDENT IN EIGHTEEN MONTHS

SUFFERS A FRACTURED ARM

Injured Man Said To Be Resting Comfortably Monday Afternoon

The first serious accident at the Limestone plant of the Indiana Portland Cement Co. in eighteen months, occurred Monday morning about 8:30 o'clock when Jesse Richardson, laborer in a shale bin, was caught under a shale slide suffering a fracture of the right wrist and a dislocated right hip.

Richardson with two other workmen, was employed in the shale bin when a bank of the shale suddenly gave way burying him under several tons of earth. Richardson was immediately rescued from his perilous situation and Dr. C. C. Tucker called. Dr. Tucker had Richardson taken to the County Hospital by ambulance. With the assistance of Dr. W. W. Tucker a fracture of both bones in the right fore arm was reduced and a dislocated hip attended. Richardson also suffered cuts and bruises.

As a result of an active campaign to prevent accidents, the local cement plant has had but a few minor accidents in the past eighteen months. The accident Monday was the only serious one during this period.

Tax collections this fall will probably amount to slightly less than a half million it is estimated. Collection of taxes has been increasing daily during the past week as the final day draws nearer. The usual big rush of last minute taxpayers is anticipated this week and next Saturday however.

HOLMES WANTS NEGLEY CITED FOR CONTEMPT

MAYOR ASPIRANT CLAIMS PRESENT OFFICE HOLDER HAS BEEN ENTRENCHING HIMSELF

FOUR GROUNDS FOR CLAIM

Judge Milner To Act On A Petition To Dissolve Temporary Restraining Order This Afternoon

By EUGENE J. CADOU, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 31.—(INS)—Holding that the city council of Indianapolis legally elected Claude E. Negley, its president, as temporary mayor of Indianapolis, succeeding Mayor John L. Duvall, superior Court Judge, Joseph M. Milner, this afternoon, overruled a motion by Ira M. Holmes, to dissolve a temporary restraining order which Negley obtained against Holmes.

Judge Milner said that Holmes had no legal right to contest for the mayoralty. "Holmes is an invader and a usurper," the court held.

The statutes were construed by Judge Milner to legalize the election of a mayor by the council, when the office has been held by a city controller who resigned.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 31.—While the two "mayors" of Indianapolis today awaited the decision of Superior Court Judge Joseph M. Milner as to who is the legal head of the city there was less of the Alphonse and Gaston spirit between Claude E. Negley and Ira M. Holmes, the contenders.

The thin veneer of politeness had yielded to threats by Holmes that he will ask that Negley be cited for contempt of court because Negley has been entrenching himself energetically in the mayor's office from which Holmes had been restrained by Judge Milner's temporary order.

Holmes said he would ask that Negley be cited for contempt on four grounds:

1. Because Negley changed all the locks on doors of the mayor's chambers at the city hall.
2. Because Negley has tried to gain his end "by force."
3. Because Negley tried to gain possession of books, papers and files of the city.
4. Because Negley fortified himself in the mayor's office with armed policemen as his "army."

Judge Milner was scheduled to act on a petition of Holmes to dissolve the temporary restraining order which prevents Holmes from being mayor at 2 p. m.

With announcement by William C. Buser, brother-in-law of former mayor John L. Duvall and former city controller, and Walter Myers, Democratic opponent of Duvall in the 1925 election that they would not advance their claims for the mayor's office the field today was reduced to Negley and Holmes and Joseph L. Hogue, who was city controller in the Lew Shank administration.

Friends of Buser had contemplated advancing his claim on the theory that he was not legally discharged as controller but Buser today said he would not become involved in the scramble.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 21.—(INS)—Appearance of former Mayor John L. Duvall as a witness before the Marion County grand jury investigating alleged political corruption was the sensation of today in the stirring municipal tangle.

Has Duvall decided to tell all? That was the question among the politicians about the Court House corridors and even at the State House.

Duvall has charged that members of the city council removed him as mayor because they were intimidated by threats of indictment by the jury.

Duvall remained with the jurors nearly two hours.

MRS. FRED ORR

"It is wonderful how Konjola

 any medicine in the world could make such a change in me," said
 Mrs. Fred Orr, 203 East Minnesota
 Ave., Vincennes, Ind.

"Neuritis was my worst trouble
 and I had been suffering for years.
 The pains became so terrific that I had to get a prescription of morphine to relieve me. I also had trouble with my stomach and constipation.
 Everything I ate disagreed with me
 and as a result I had indigestion almost daily. I was certainly in misery, but when I got Konjola it seemed to go right to the source of all my trouble. It restored my stomach to a normal, healthy condition, and relieved me of those dreadful neuritis pains entirely. My whole system has been regulated. I sleep and eat better and I have more ambition to

CHILD FEAR OF DARK.
AND HOW TO CURE IT—

MOST childhood fears have their foundation in primitive man's instinctive
 dread of the unknown.
 Fear of darkness is perhaps the commonest of these childish fears which still cling to man of the present age as a relic of the days before civilization began. But even this instinctive fear can be dispelled from the average child's mind if care is taken in the process.

No child ever should be punished for showing fear of darkness.
 An apprehensive, fearful mind cannot be dealt with harshly. On the contrary, reassuring kindness is necessary to compose the child's mind. Try to make the child understand that darkness alone cannot possibly do harm. Then demonstrate how easily the child itself can dispel darkness. Lead him gently to the door of a dark room,
 place in his hand an electric flashlight and press his little thumb on the push-button. Instantly he will understand that he has the power
 in his own hand to eliminate darkness—to make things look at night
 just as they appear in daytime.
 Soon he will make a game of turning darkness into light. Then his fear of darkness will vanish.

LEGAL DRAMA IN GATLIN MURDER
TRIAL IN JAN.

SPECTACULAR CASE TO BE SET FOR EARLY NEXT YEAR—IN
 N. C. COURTS—YOUNG BRIDE
 CHARGED WITH MURDERING
 HER FATHER IN OLD GRUDGE

HENRY LESENE
 International News Service Staff
 Correspondent

WENTWORTH, N. C., Oct. 31.—
 Not just another murder trial, but one of the most spectacular legal dramas on court record, is expected to make its bid for front page space
 here early next year.

Mrs. Eugene Gatlin, 20-year-old bride or Reidsville's fire chief, will go on trial for her life, charged with the axe-slaying of her aged father, Smith T. Petty, a cotton mill foreman.

Mrs. Gatlin, who was married only recently, is accused of slaying
 her father in a smoldering fit of hate that was fanned into flame when she returned home one night and found him choking her mother in a death grip.

According to Mrs. Gatlin's alleged confession, she thereupon engaged in a struggle with her father the latter getting the better end of it. Nursing her rage she waited until the following morning and as she prepared his breakfast struck him over the head with an axe.

This did not kill him according to the alleged confession, and for two hours she taunted him with her long threat to murder him. Two more heavy blows completed the atrocious murder and unaided the confession claims, she dragged his limp mutilated body into a closet where it remained concealed for several days.

For two years, it is alleged the girl, then Miss Alma Petty awaited her chance to kill her father. When the deed was committed, she claimed in her alleged confession the family was away at work.

Several days afterward when blood
 began to ooze from under the closet door, she is alleged to have packed
 the body in a trunk, and buried it four feet deep in the basement of her home, where it was found more than a year later.

Petty, who, it seems, frequently
 went on mysterious missions away from Reidsville, was thought to have disappeared at the time. A few months later his wife died of pneumonia and members of his family explained when he did not attend the funeral that he could not be located.

Authorities began work on a murder theory last month when they were furnished the alleged confession made by Mrs. Gatlin that she committed the horrible crime. The alleged confession was made to Rev.
 Thomas F. Pardue, an evangelist, during the course of revival here, and he turned it over to authorities.

After several weeks of investigation, authorities began digging in the basement of the home formerly occupied by Mrs. Gatlin and made the gruesome discovery of Petty's body, buried in a trunk four feet under the ground.

Mrs. Gatlin was arrested and charged with the crime on the same day. Her husband, Eugene Gatlin, fire chief of Reidsville, was held for questioning but was released within a few hours, when authorities failed to connect him with the crime.

Mrs. Gatlin, taken to the jail here vehemently denied that she had any knowledge of the murder, and declared that she knew nothing of the confession she was alleged to have made to the minister.

Rev. Pardue came to Reidsville in May of last year and held a revival
 in a giant tobacco warehouse there.
 He soon had a large following, and established his own church at Reids-ville.

The course of defense is being kept in secrecy.

Meanwhile authorities, not believing that the 20-year-old girl could have disposed of her father's body alone, are searching for several alleged accomplices after the fact, which they believe will be apprehended before the case comes to trial in January.

CHURCH OF SALT
UNDER SURFACE
IN POLISH MINE

WORKERS TRANSFORM GREAT CAVERN INTO CHAPEL FOR CATHOLIC WORSHIPPERS—SA-CRED IMAGES, ALTARS, PEWS CARVED OF SOLID WALLS OF
 SALT

By International News Service

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 31.—Hundreds of feet beneath the surface of a salt-mine in the province of Cracow,
 once the capital of the Polish Kingdom, stands one of the strangest places of worship in the world. A Cathedral built of salt.

In this mine where for centuries
 men have labored unceasingly hewing
 great blocks of salt from the depths instead of finding mere empty caverns and looking upon what the popular conception of a mine might be, you are stunned by gazing upon monuments of piety and shrines of loveliness. Here in the very bowels of the earth is beauty.

Formerly this Cathedral was a vast cavern, from which had been hewn a million tons of rock salt. The construction of it is due to two miners, dedicated to a life-long task by their fellow-workers. These two men worked for 40 years transforming it into a Catholic chapel; smoothing
 the walls, rearing the altar and carving the sacred images.

After a lingering period of descent into the depths, one may witness the grace and comeliness which these two Poles wrested from the materlay of their fellow-workers labor and livelihood.

First you tread along a staircase
 of marble between walls of marble,
 in reality salt. This staircase opens into a marble corridor, and the corridor into a cathedral. In the distance gleam the flickering lights of an altar, surrounded by noble pillars. From the soaring roof hang great chandeliers with scores of electrically lighted candles.

Along the sides of a huge aisle
 with little side chapels are visible opening out from the nave, each with its altar and its lights.

In passing to their toll the miners kneel at altars that are shaped from salt and surrounded by columns and statues moulded from salt; they dip their fingers in holy water that lies in fonts scooped from
 salt.

 dred reserve officers of Indiana. The first of a series of contact camps to

FARM SENTENCE FOR FIRING NEGRO'S CLOTHES

MOUNT VERNON, Ind., Oct. 29.—
 Police are busy today rounding up
 Mount Vernon youths who were implicated in an attack upon Henry Dim-mett, 12 year old negro, by testimony of Ralph Storey, who was found guilty of assault and battery and sentenced to five months on the state farm and fined $40 and costs.

Storey was charged with having been one of a gang who poured gas-oiline over the clothes of the negro lad
 and set him a fire. Only the quick action of a passerby prevented Dim-mett being burned to death, it is said.
 The jury deliberated only 45 minutes before bringing in a verdict in the case. Storey acted as his own attorney and in his effort to clear himself is said to have implicated several other young men living in this vicinity.

DR. T. M. CULVER, Specialist
 (Licensed by the State of Indiana) Brings the knowledge of forty years of experience in the successful treatment of Complicated chronic conditions.

Dr. Culver, experienced specialist formerly with National Doctors of Milwaukee, also some years connected with the Chicago Hospital, treats
 without surgical operations or hypo-dermic injections, diseases of the blood, skin, and the internal organs,
 rheumatism, sciatica, lung troubles,
 old ulcers, tape-worm, eczema, asthma, chronic constipation, epilepsy, high blood pressure, bed wetting and other morbid affections of the body.
 Years of experience and the great number of cases successfully treated prove that the methods of the Doctor
 are very dependable.

Many people keep on suffering from ailments that might be greatly improved because they cannot afford to go to high-priced specialists away from home, and few communities have sufficient numbers of such cases to support a specialist.

The doctor has solved this problem
 by traveling from town to town to meet the sick. He instructs patients, recommends a course of treatment,
 and teaches failing men and women
 how to take care of themselves at home.

To those having ailments of long standing, whatever the trouble may be, and notwithstanding the poor results of former treatments, come and talk it over.

Ladies are requested to come ex-
 corted.

HEIGH HO! JUMP RIGHT IN THE SNOW

A man tumbling into a snowbank and dropping out of sight generally is regarded as an hilariously funny object. But to John Barrymore, whose first United Artists picture, "The Beloved Rogue," is coming to the Vancastle theatre today such an incident proved not only amusing but a most fortunate happening as well.

His disappearance in a snowbank, in the role of Francois Villon, famous poet of French history, saved him from arrest by the town watch. Villon, through a strange complexity of character, was not only talented as a character, but was also adept as a thief. The term "porchclimber," in modern parlance, best describes his doubtful occupation at the time of the snowbank surprise.

The use of snow, apart from providing the basis of numerous comedy highlights in "The Beloved Rogue," proved highly advantageous in emphasizing the driving action of some of the scenes.

William Cameron Menzies, art director of "The Beloved Rogue," and rated the leader in his profession, used snowstorm effects particularly during the portion of the picture which reveals the impulsive Villon as a housebreaker. Such an undertaking being best not disclosed to public knowledge, the secretive nature of his prowling over the picturesque rooftops and through the rabbit warren of Paris streets is made more striking by the swirling, drifting snow, which lends an effect of concealment to Villon's escapades.

Barrymore, in his portrayal of Francois Villon, had in support the great European character actor, Conrad Veidt, as Louis XI. Marceline Day as the fascinating Charlotte de Vauxcelles, Villon's sweetheart, makes "The Beloved Rogue" the most colorful, romantic screen story in the history of motion pictures.

BLACKFEET INDIANS TO VISIT COUNTY

FIRST TRAIN EVER TO BE OPERATED OVER GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY TO GO THROUGH NORTHERN SECTION—GOING FROM INDIANAPOLIS WEST OVER THE B. & O. LINES

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 31.—Pioneer days of the West emerged from the shadows last night when thirty-five Blackfeet Indians on their way home from the Baltimore & Ohio railroad's fair of the Iron Horse at Baltimore, arrived in Indianapolis for a visit aboard their relic of those days, the first train of the St. Paul & Pacific railroad, now the Great Northern.

Today these members of the Pikuni and Kainai tribes of the Blackfeet nation will tour the city and will hold two pow-wows, meet Governor Ed. Jackson and visit children's institutions.

The troop of braves and squaws arrived in Indianapolis aboard the train drawn by the engine "William Crooks the first locomotive in Minnesota. Despite its age for it started work Sept. 9, 1861 running between St. Paul and St. Anthony (Minnesota), the old engine has drawn the train of a baggage car and coach from the Indians' home in Glacier National park to the fair in Baltimore and is now returning its cargo to its Montana home.

The old iron horse weighs 102,000 pounds while its modern brothers weigh 600,000 pounds. It is fifty-one feet long as compared to a modern engine, ninety-five feet long. While steaming into its siding last night a large Pennsylvania locomotive drew alongside—a giant and a pigmy—but the little fellow held its own in speed.

A baggage car and a day coach part of the old St. Paul & Pacific equipment, make up the load. Col. W. H. McGraw of Grand Forks, N. D., a Great Northern veteran of forty three and one-half years, is conductor. And John J. Meher of St. Paul, Minn., engineer. Maher has a service record of forty-eight years and is one of three brothers, all Great Northern engineers, with 134 years of service. O'Kane J. MacGillis of St. Paul, of the Great Northern Railway advertising department is in charge of the Indian party.

On the return trip, the Indians have visited Philadelphia, Pa.; New York, Washington, Cumberland, Md.; Grafton, Pa.; Wheeling, W. Va.; Columbus, O.; Cincinnati, O., and Louisville, Ky. Yesterday the party left Cincinnati and made stops at Oxford, O., and Connersville. They will leave at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning for St. Louis, Mo. A stop will be made at Springfield, Ill., where they will visit Lincoln's tomb. They have been traveling over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad but from St. Louis they will go on the Burlington to St. Paul from where they will travel on the Great Northern railroad.

PASTOR SPEAKS "ON WAY OUT" AT LOCAL CHURCH

REV. VICTOR L. RAPHAEL SAYS KNOWLEDGE WILL PREVENT USE OF ALCOHOLIC LIQUORS—COMMANDS BOARD OF EDUCATION

Speaking on the subject "The Way Out" at the evening service in the Presbyterian Church Sunday, Rev. V. L. Raphael used as the text Isaiah 5:20—"My people are gone into captivity through lack of knowledge."

"Mankind is held in bondage by many conditions, among them being ignorance, unbelief, disease, moral deficiencies. Chief among the latter is the age old tendency to indulge in the use of intoxicating liquor. In the day in which the prophet charged the people with dissolute living and dissipation he especially dealt with their alcoholic indulgence which they accompanied by a form of cheap music, prevalent in the world today. Bootleg liquor is not a 20th century invention. It is as old as man. The people in Isaiah's time made strong drink from dates, honey, raisins, barley, etc., which conforms to methods of our own time. But what is the way out of the bondage that results from indulgence in alcohol of whatever form?"

"It is knowledge, the lack of which causes God's children to go into captivity. The acquiring of the right kind of wisdom will not only point the way out, but better still will act as a preventative. This is the day of stopping before beginning, of making it unnecessary for diseases to occur. Why not apply this teaching to one of the greatest perils in American life—the use of alcohol?"

"It is encouraging to find strong, unqualified chapters in the books on Hygiene used in the Public Schools of Indiana edited by such men as Dr. Emerson, a medical authority, and Dr. Betts, a leader in education. It is by such teaching to each oncoming generation that prevention can be secured and the bondage to appetite cease. Our state board of Education is to be congratulated on its instruction to the pupils of the elementary grades, but unfortunately that is where it also ends. Only indirectly and to a limited number, who are in the science department of our high schools, is there any attention given to the dangers of alcohol. I wish it were possible that somewhere in training of the fine youth of our secondary division there could be given to every student additional reasons for leaving alcohol alone."

SYNOPSIS

Hurricane Haley, a sailing skipper, kidnaps Polly, the dancer at Crawley's, and takes her with him, intending to make her pay for an injury she did not do him. Polly learns to love the sea and Hurricane is disgusted, shipping her back to Frisco when the schooner is rammed by a passing steamer. Later when he returns to Frisco he finds that Polly is now dancing for the Chinks and finds too late that he loves her. Going to the dive where she works he sees her and she is far from the Polly that he used to know. After insulting her by giving her a penny he goes back stage, where Polly, goaded to fury, tells him what she thinks of him.

"Gettin' money for you were me out so that no-one but the Chinks would have me, but I've got it. See here's the record. I made Crawley give it me," and she drew forth a piece of paper from the bag. "Here it is, all of it. What I've paid you in wages already and what I owe you. An' I've got it all, by dancing and slaving for the Chinks."

Hurricane shuffled uneasily. He was feeling anything but comfortable, as the girl went on: "Here's what I collected tonight, yer notice I even picked up yer penny. I'm not refusing anything because I want to be free again, to forget the likes o' you."

Hurricane shifted so that he could look at her, and for the second time he began to wonder. He remembered Wooden Leg Cribbins and the others, and began to and very soon the sibilant voice of Hang, the Mongolian, called Polly back to her hideous duties.

Listlessly she rose to her feet and dabbed a little makeup on to her colorless cheeks. Her hair, always a tangled mass of curling bronze, seemed too heavy for her; but, pushing a few turtan strands back from her forehead, she nodded a goodbye to Lou and went to dance again.

Hurricane had intended to go out and had even forced his way through the crowd as far as the door. Here he had paused and as if impelled by something stronger than himself turned and went back into the crowd. He could not leave till he had seen her once again. Perhaps there might be a trace of sorrow in her face, perhaps not, but anyway he felt that he must carry at least one more memory back with him. He did not want to be seen, and, choosing a table that was hidden from the stage, he sat and waited. The Jewish girl was dancing and singing again, but Hurricane did not even hear her, and when her turn was over there was a pause and Polly came out.

If Hurricane had noticed a difference in Polly when he saw her dance before it was even more apparent now. She had no reason for dancing, and as she drove her poor tired little legs through their motions she could not bring a smile to her face. It was just plain hard work. With superhuman effort she struggled on. Several times she missed her step, but each time she guess the reason for their feelings. Polly did not give him a chance to speak, but burst out again: "Don't look at me like that. I ain't lying to yer. I don't lie. I leave that to you, who ain't got enough in him to tell the truth. Here it is, all of it. Take it and get out of here. Get out here, damn you, and I never want to see you again."

"This girl's mine, an' she's goin' with me."

Hurricane did not move, and, flying into a passion, Polly took the bag and thrust it into the inside of his reefer coat. It fell out, and the coins spilled over the floor. Polly picked up the bag and again gave it to him, pushing it roughly into his pocket. Then, doubling her fists, she beat his chest and shoulders, screaming:

"Get out, damn you. I've paid you, now get out. Get out, I say."

A few coins lying on the floor caught her eye, and she picked them up and threw them with all her might at him. With the coins beating on his face Hurricane found the door and stepped outside. He slammed behind him. Inside Polly sank to the floor and sobbed quietly.

Hurricane stood there in a daze. He was ashamed, humiliated by a woman he had hated and despised, even loathed. Then occurred to him her plea aboard the Sea Sprite—a plea to him, a plea that he should help to mend her ways. And he had thought that she was lying. To-night he knew that she was not.

He had the proof—the fact that she had wrecked her body to pay him the money he demanded, the fact that she had given her life to prove him wrong. He turned and tried the door, but it was locked now. He called to her, but there was no answer, and grimly, soberly, he turned and made his way back to the dance-hall.

Chinese Lou returned after her act and found Polly well-nigh exhausted. This was not the first time, and, try as she would, Lou could not see why Polly did not quit and take a rest. She had tried so many times to persuade her to, but always she was answered with the same tired smile and nothing more. This time Polly did not even smile, and Lou, going over to her, put her arms about the frail little shoulders and hugged her.

"Polly, dear, I've often wondered why you ever landed here, you used to be so good over at the Riverside, and then when you came back after that trip you just worked yourself to death. It ain't a man, dear, is it? If it is you're all wrong, for there ain't one in the world that's worth it."

struggled on till at last her frail little body gave way and she collapsed in a forlorn little heap. Everything went black before her, and she lay like a fighter who has received a knockout blow but was still trying to regain his feet.

Hang, standing in the wings, raved at her. "You cheap little trash," he roared, "you're not here to rest. Get up and dance or get to hell out of here an' let someone else who dances take your place."

The crowd roared its resentment, but Polly did not move. Hang, losing his temper, walked over to her and stirred the little body with his foot. Then, with a look of disgust, he turned to the crowd:

"She's no good anyhow. We got plenty more dancers. You wait a minute."

Something in the inside of Hurricane's brain seemed to snap. The sight of that repulsive Chinaman pushing the woman he loved with his foot turned him into a raving maniac, and, thrusting the loungers to right and left, he forced his way to the stage. Hang saw him coming and sensed trouble, but he had seen him before, and, stealing his hand beneath his robe, where his knife was hidden, he stood him ground and waited.

Mad as he was, Hurricane knew his Chinaman, and, passing by the last of the tables, he caught hold of an empty whiskey bottle, and as the knife flashed down he crashed it across the wrist of the Chin. Hang gave a squeal of rage and pain and grappled with the sailor.

Tall as he was, Hurricane found his match in Hang. The huge Chinese had arms like steel bands, and every muscle in his body was like wire. His groping fingers found Hurricane's throat, but with a terrific effort Haley slipped out of them and began to crash short jabs into the ribs of his opponent. Hang was not used to this style of fighting and attempted to pinion the arms that were thrashing into his stomach. For a brief second his head was open, and with every ounce of his strength behind the blow Hurricane smashed his huge fist against the Chin's jaw.

Hang flew backward as if hit by an elevator and dropped against the piano in a crumpled motionless heap. A thin stream of blood began to trickle from his head, but no one looked at Hang. In the center of the stage Hurricane stood over Polly with his fists clenched and shoulders back, inviting the world to take her from him. No one moved, but from the back of the room came murmurs that Hurricane knew would breed false courage in someone if he gave it time.

"This girl's mine, an' she's goin' with me. Anyone got anything to say?" he snarled at them.

TIGERS WIN OLD GOLD DAY TILT FROM FRANKLIN

DRIVE IN CLOSING SESSION RESULTS IN 6 TO 0 VICTORY—HUNDREDS OF VISITORS SEE FIRST HOME COMING VICTORY IN THREE YEARS

After battling through three quarters of a game that seemed destined to end in a scoreless tie, the DePauw Tigers Saturday battered a weary Franklin eleven down the field in the fourth period for the only score of the game and their first home-coming day victory in the last three years. The final score was 6-0.

Nearly five thousand students, townspeople and alumni who had returned for Old Gold day filled the bleachers and a delegation of more than five hundred fans from Franklin was in the opposite stands. The weather was far from ideal for football and it was a sweaty, weary pair of football eleven's that limped away from the field at the final whistle.

DePauw held the edge throughout the game scoring ten first downs as compared to Franklin's three. After the first period the Blue and White seemed to tire and the Tigers found numerous holes in the lines which they tured into appreciable gains.

The Tigers were augmented from the start by the reappearance of Capt. Anderson and four other veterans who have been nursing injuries. Brandenburg, star quarter, who was a consistent ground gainer against Butler last week was kept from play by an injury received in practice during the past week.

Franklin appeared with its regular lineup and made but few substitutions during the game while DePauw made frequent changes.

The aerial attacks of both teams were weak, Franklin completing two out of seven attempts for a gain of thirteen yards, while DePauw completed four of seventeen attempts for a total gain of thirty-nine yards. Franklin, however, punted thirteen times for a total of 457 yards while DePauw's nine punts netted only 295 yards.

DePauw's first threat on the Blue and White goal came in the second quarter when it plunged the Franklin defense for a series of gains that took it to the ten-yard line. On the fourth down with a yard to go, DePauw failed to complete a forward pass and lost the ball on downs. The second chance came in the third quarter when a long end run by Gunn took the Tigers nearly to the line. DePauw, however, failed to solve the Blue and White defense and the second chance went the way of the first.

Franklin's most serious threat was in Rake, speedy half, who helped complete several forward passes and

LUMBER YARD SAVED MONDAY BY FIREMEN

QUICK RESPONSE TO ALARM PREVENTS PROBABLE DISASTROUS FIRE—COAT HANGING IN HARDWARE STOCK ROOM IGNITED AND SPREADS TO LUMBER

Quick, efficient work by the city fire department probably prevented a disastrous fire Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Allan Lumber Company yards on north Indiana street.

The fire started from a coat belonging to one of the workmen which was hung in a corner of the hardware stock room. Just what caused the coat to ignite was not learned.

The blaze was extinguished with chemicals after it had gained considerable headway. Only the quick response of the firemen averted a serious fire which might have consumed the entire lumber yard.
